The Hasselblad Cable Release X allows remote shutter release to avoid shock or vibration. A durable, textile-covered 90cm cable connects to the microphone input of the X1D-50c. By simply operating the remote with a single button, photographers can keep movement to a minimum. When autofocus is enabled on the camera, a single press starts autofocus and then releases the shutter.

When held down in continuous shooting mode, multiple images can be captured in succession, while in manual focus, the Cable Release X releases the shutter without delay. Its robust metal construction combined with its slim, ergonomic design feels comfortable in the hand. The Cable Release X comes in a small leather pouch.
